Vijay's LinkedIn Post Copy: I recently participated in a panel discussion called “Technology Pathways—Fork in the Road?” as part of Energy Week at the @University of Texas at Austin.

There is an opportunity when it comes to innovating new solutions to reducing emissions, which I think societies can address by accelerating different kinds of innovation in parallel. In other words, the world can explore a myriad of solutions from the petri dish to pilot plants all at once. What helps us get there is collaboration between big and small companies, universities and government labs. Each brings an essential and unique perspective that continues to help accelerate this tech development. I’m realistic – this is an ongoing project. But I’m also very optimistic: The kind of collaboration I’m talking about is happening now and will increase in the years to come. It will continue to kick start tech innovation and bring us further down the road toward addressing the world’s growing demand for energy and the risks of climate change
