ExxonMobil Comments on Engine No. 1 Director Nominations

IRVING, Texas – Exxon Mobil Corporation issued the following statement regarding Engine No. 1’s director nominations.

ExxonMobil’s directors have experience leading some of the world’s largest, most complex and successful companies and bring to the board a wide range of backgrounds, knowledge and skills relevant to the company’s business and future direction – unlike the Engine No. 1 candidates.

Over the past several years, we have evolved and refreshed our board to adjust to changing company needs, including adding members with deep expertise in capital allocation, energy transition, new technology development and commercialization, and environmental, social and governance (ESG) practices. These directors also have significant experience helping companies navigate complex transitions while building value for shareholders.

The Board Affairs Committee thoroughly considered Engine No. 1’s nominees and determined that, while they are all knowledgeable in certain areas, they did not have the global experience, leadership qualifications and skillsets required for a company of ExxonMobil’s size and scope as it navigates the highly complex energy transition.

We categorically disagree with Engine No. 1’s assertions about our board, including the directors they have targeted.
