Introduction

National Legal and Policy Center (“NLPC”) urges shareholders to vote AGAINST Lawrence “Larry” W. Kellner on the 2024 proxy ballot for Exxon Mobil Corporation (“ExxonMobil” or the “Company”).

NLPC filed a previous 10-page Notice of Exempt Solicitation on May 6, 2024, outlining reasons in detail why Mr. Kellner should not serve on ExxonMobil's board.¹

On Thursday, May 9, 2024, NLPC published a short video² that summarized why ExxonMobil shareholders should oppose Mr. Kellner's election to the board. Following are key screenshots captured from that video.

(Music playing in background)

“No U.S.-based company has had a worse year this year than Boeing...”

“...multitudes of bad headlines over Boeing’s poor safety practices were everywhere...”

“...and the bad news of financial losses for Boeing...”

“...and [for] its customers followed...”

“The mess at Boeing has built for a very long time, for the last five years under the oversight of Chairman Larry Kellner...”

“...it’s gotten so bad, that he’s leaving, with Boeing under a safety and ethics cloud...”

“...But even after the disaster at Boeing, Exxon Mobil STILL wants Larry Kellner to serve on ITS board!”

“...and believe it or not, Exxon’s board plans to have Kellner serve on the board’s safety committee! We are not making this up!!”
